FIRE FIEND THREATENS TOWN

Humorous Tale of Another Escape From the Old Jail---Stories From Stirring Days of 1865-66.

Early on the morning of December 24th this town was visited by another serious fire, entailing a considerable financial loss and for a time threatening the destruction of the greater part of the business section of the town. A little after 3 o'clock in the morning flames were discovered issuing from the business building of W. F. Stambaugh, located at the corner of Main and Phelps streets. As soon as the flames were noticed an alarm was turned in, through the then fashionable method of a sturdy yell, and the fire bell rang out its summons to the ever ready firemen, who responded promptly to the call for duty. While the firemen worked with a will and directed their efforts systematically, they were for some time unable to stay the progress of the flames, their efforts being seriously handicapped by a lack of water to supply the fire engine, it unfortunately being the time of low tide. What water could be obtained was used to the best advantage, with a view to preventing the spread of the fire to the adjoining buildings, but in spite of these efforts three buildings were destroyed before the fire was under control. The buildings destroyed were the property of Dr. S. S. Stambaugh and W. F. Stambaugh, and their destruction entailed a loss of about $3,000, upon which there was no insurance. Two of the buildings were occupied as grocery stores, one by W. F. Stambaugh and the other by Bartlett & Keith, and from these the stocks of goods were removed with but very little damage, the loss probably not exceeding $100. As far as could be ascertained, the fire was of accidental origin, starting in the back room of Stambaugh's store, but the direct cause could not be ascertained.

At the meeting of Bay View Lodge, I. O. O. F., officers for the next term were elected as follows: H. A. Schofield, noble grand; William Holder, vice grand; J. W. Turner, secretary; David Jenkins, treasurer. These officers were installed at the first meeting in January by Charles N. Fox, the then District Deputy Grand Master.

With the advent of the year 1866, another complete change in the ownership and editorial control of the Gazette was announced, the paper passing into the hands of H. A. Schofield M. A. Warren, who made their advent into the journalistic field under the firm title of Schofield & Warren. As one of their first acts, a complete change was made in the appearance of the heading, substituting a plain but rather large sized and awkward appearing letter for the neat text type that had been in use up to this time. The new owners announced that it was not their intention to make any material change in the policy of the paper, and that under their control it would continue to be independent of political or religious leaning, giving to all shades of opinion equally courteous treatment, but discussing all issues of the day fearlessly in the light of view from which they saw them. In bidding farewell to the readers whom he had served for more than four years, David Downer, the former proprietor of the paper, made no allusion to the causes which lead him to relenquish the business nor to the labors in which he intended to engage in the future.

The beginning of the new year witnessed an era of considerable activity in the line of improvement in the town, and the commencement of several new business buildings was announced. Prominent among these was the erection of of a large brick building by Dr. Merrill, a portion of which was to be occupied as a drug store. At the same time plans were announced for the rebuilding of the recently burned district by Dr. Stambaugh and his brother. These buildings were also to be constructed of brick, and were expected to be substantial structures. At the same time a movement was started looking to the improvement of the sidwalks of the town, which had been in a deplorable condition. As a beginning in this direction, a continuous line of substantial walks was laid from the depot to the business section of the town. In commenting on these improvements, the editor of the Gazette gave utterance to a sentiment which is equally apt today, when he said: "These permanent improvements are an evidence that our people are beginning to realize that Redwood City is not only a pleasant place to live in, but a good place to invest their money."

On the last day of the old year another chapter was added to the already somewhat long story of escapes from the county jail at this place, as usual without serious effort or inconvenience on the part of the men who had decided to bid an unceremonious farewell to the hospitality of the Sheriff. In this case—which presented some unusual features—the story is told so aptly and entertaining by the reporter for the Gazette that it is reproduced in its entirety from the files. Under the heading of "Escape Extraordinary—Jail to Let," the story is told in the issue of January 6th as follows: "Jim Simmons, the jumpist, and B. B. Stevens, who have been confined in the jail at this place for some time past on a charge of larceny, made their escape last Saturday evening in a manner that shows a lack of moral integrity on their part quite reprihensible, and which may have a tendency to lessen the confidence of the Sheriff in the honesty and good intentions of hardened criminals. Simmons had become very religious lately, and Samaritan like, the Sheriff had furnished him with a Bible and hymn book to aid him in his devotions. Much of his time—assisted by Stevens—was spent in reading the Bible, praying and singing psalms. Saturday evening last, the Sheriff, as usual, took their supplies in a little after dark, leaving the door of the jail open, and while he was engaged in some part of the jail remote from the door, Simmons quit his devotions and quietly walked forth into freedon and a more healthy atmosphere, without even closing with the benediction or singing the doxology. The Sheriff missed his man in a short time and out after him, leaving the jail door unlocked in his haste, and after a hunt of some two hours returned to find that Stevens, in total violation of good faith as well as the responsibilities and feelings of the Sheriff had also left for parts unknown without saying good bye Joe. Suffice it to say that the Sheriff missed them both that night, and although search was made for several days and nights he still misses them, and the place that resounded with their musical voices is now silent as the tomb, and will probably know them no more forever, and Joe's two dollars a day jailor's fees is stopped, but his Bible and hymn book were left behind by the ungrateful fugitives, and to them we recommend him to look for cousolation, for if he fails to find it there he will be less successful than the gay and festive converts, who were too conscientious to take them along with them."

Tribute to Departed Classmate.

The following tribute to the late Norman Buck, by one of his fellow students, appears in the October number of "The Redwood", the Santa Clara College publication:

It is hard for us to realize that our school fellow, Norman Buck, is no more. Up to this time death seemed to have but a vague meaning for us. It never before touched us so directly. But now it has reached into our very midst and taken one of us, a youth of unusual promise, one universally beloved.

Our hearts go out to his dear ones. Deeply we sympathize with them in their loss. The human heart always feels a certain amount of regret for the person, no matter who he may be, that is stricken by the hand of death. How much more natural it is, therefore, that we should grieve for a school fellow who was cut off in the dawn of a promising young life and who was bound to us by the strong ties of friendship.

His, indeed, was a noble nature. His sterling character would not bear the thought of falsehood. It seemed repugnant to his whole being. He was ever the unvarying champion of truth and clean thought and clean speech. Truthfully he may be pointed out as a model of what a young man should be.

His literary talents deserve no less praise. The poems of which he was the author have the true, the genuine ring.

It is no wonder that we miss him, this youth that was so well beloved on account of his genial manner, his kind heart, his sweet nature, and his modest unassuming ways. What more is there left for us to say. Feeble words can do but little to express our feelings. They are but slight signs of the grief that is locked up within our hearts. Yet he has not altogether left us. He has but gone before us to that happy land where trouble and care are left behind, and where we hope that we may all meet some day in the happy future.

Another Pioneer Crosses Divide.

James, P. Coleman, the night watchman, received the sad news Monday afternoon of the death of his aged father, James, in San Francisco. The old gentleman had been operated on at St. Mary's hospital several weeks ago with the hope that he would be spared from impending death, but on account of his advanced years the operation proved to be unsuccessful. The deceased had been a respected pioneer resident of stockton and conducted a contracting business. He was interred at that city yesterday. Among the mourners was Thomas Kane of this city who was a lifelong friend of the deceased.

HIGH SCHOOL BOY DROPS FROM SIGHT

Mystery Surrounds Sudden Disappearance of Young Student of Sequoia.

CHESTER KIRKPATRICK MISSING

Has Not Been Seen or Heard from for Several Days---Was a Resident of La Honda.

Young Chester Kirkpatrick, a freshman student in the high school, has dropped out of sight and his parents are almost destracted at his disappearance, and fear that he may have been foully dealt with. The missing boy, who is a son of Arthur Kirkpatrick of La Honda, has been a student in the highschool since the beginning of the present term. He and his elder brother, Arthur occupied rooms together on Webster street. Saturday the two boys went to San Francisco to see the parade and returned home that evening. Sunday morning the boy was seen about town and during the day he disappeared. His failure to come to his room that night alarmed his brother and search was at once made for him. It was learned that a boy answering his discription was seen at Palo Alto Monday and the Santa Clara officers were notified. Sheriff Chatham and his deputies are also scouring the country but up to a late hour last night no tidings of the missing youth had been secured.

Mrs. Krkpatrick came from La Honda yesterday and has joined in the search. She is almost beside herself at the disappearance of her boy and cannot think other than that harm has come to him.

The missing boy is described as follows: Height, 5 feet, 6 inches; weight, 150 pounds; wore dark suit, dark brown hat with band slightly torn, white shirt, red tie and silver pin; high black shoes; dark complexion, brown eyes and straight black hair; small scar on upper lip, nose slightly deformed.

Co-Operation

We think we are justified in asking the co operation of the public to the extent of holding toward us a friendly spirit in considering our problems and dealing with personal and municipal questions which affect us.

The co-operation which we desire is not the kind which would perform our work for us or lift our responsibilities from our shoulders. Rather it is the same appreciation and encouragement which is accorded any worthy commercial enterprise whose labor and ambitions help to make the city great.

A city cannot get along without utilities, nor can the utilities exist without the city. They are mutually dependent. A gas company that does not do its utmost towards developing its city is working against its own interests; likewise a community which fails to co-operate with an EFFICIENT public service company sacrifices its own welfare.

On this point the Railroad Commission of Wisconsin, an absolutely disinterested body, has said: "The relations between the cities and the utilities operating therein should be harmonious. There must be co-operation rather than agitation. No one, it would seem, has anything to gain by the financial failure of public service corporations which are conducted and operated under ordinary or normal conditions.

"Losses to such plants are, in the end, likely to result in both public and private injuries. It usually means poorer or depreciated service, which of itself is a very important item. Even if it should enable cities to acquire title to their utility plants at comparatively low cost, such acquisition is not likely to prove a popular one in the long run.

SET MARK ON ROUTE OF EL CAMINO REAL

The Redwood City Womans Club Dedicates Mission Bell to Honor Early Padres.

ORATION BY S. M. SHORTRIDGE

Glowing Tribute to Memory of Men Who Laid the Foundation of Our State's Grand Civilization.

Nature certainly lent the smile of her approval last Sunday upon the efforts of the members of the Redwood City Womans Club in their effort to commemorate the grand work of those good old Mission Fathers whose lives were devoted to the laying of the foundation for the magnificent civilization of this great empire of the Golden West. With all of the great wealth of glorious climate, no more appropriate day could heve been selected. Under th bright rays of a clear summer sun, tempered by the cooling breezes of Old Ocean, a goodly concourse of people gathered to witness their unveiling of the Mission Bell which is to stand as a mile stone marking the way trod by the feet of those good men whose lives were devoted to the holy task of leading to the light of a better life the untutored natives of the wilderness. With due ceremony, but with the simplicity appropriate to the occasion, were the ceremonies carried out.

Planted appropriately at the intersection of the main street of the city with El Camino Real, the road laid out by those good Padres, had been erected firmly the iron post upon which was hung the counterpart of the old Mission Bells which had been used so long ago to call the untutored sons and daughters of the wilderness to their devotions, temporarily hid from view in the folds of the glorious banner of our country. At the foot of this had been erected a temporary platform decorated with the beautiful flowers of the valley, and from this the beautiful ceremonies were held.

After the singing of "America" by a selected choir, Mrs. C. E. Cumberson, president of the Redwood City Womans Club, stepped upon the plat form and in a few well chosen words dedicated the bell to the purpose for which it had been erected, saying:

"In erecting and dedicating these Mission bells to the memory of the good padres and pioneers, we are impressed with the truth contained in the words of the poet, Robert Heath: 'Good actions crown themselves with lasting bays.' It is now well over a hundred years since those faithful padres first trod this, the king's highway, oftimes hungry, footsore and weary, giving no thought of their own suffering, but ever ready to succor and minister to the comfort of others. With no desire for praise they wended their way intent only on their duty to God and man, but like all good actions that ascend as angels to the high throne of heaven they have descended after more than a hundred years inthe shape of these Mission bells as crowning bays to teach posterity a beautiful lesson of life. And to-day, this day of our Lord, October twenty-fourth, nineteen hundred and nine, in the name of the Redwood City Woman's Club I dedicate and add this Mission bell as a leaf in that crown of bays".

As the words of Mrs. Cumberson were concluded the silken strings which held in place the flag were drawn by Miss Mazie Read and Miss Emily Hess and the presentment of the sound of the old call to worship was rung from the revealed bell. As the notes of the bell died away, Rev. Father Sullivan, pastor of Mount Carmel Church, of this city, performed the beautiful ceremony of the blessing of the bell in the ritual of the Catholic Church, the holy faith of the good men in memory of whose works it had been erected.

Appropriately dwelling upon the importance of these opportunities of instilling into the minds especially of the young of the lessons of a true and noble patriotism, Mrs. Cumberson then introduced as one whose name would go down to history as ever active in this grand work of patriotic uplifting of both the young and old, Samuel M. Shortridge, as the orator of the occasion. That Mr. Shortridge was welcome to a Redwood City audience was made evident by the enthusiasm of his reception and the marked attention which his remarks—which were all too brief for the pleasure of his audience— were listened to. Saying "let us hope that the Heavenly Father looks down today with pleasure and approval upon this scene," Mr Shortridge paid a glowing and eloquent tribute to the memory of the works of the good men in whose memory the symbolic monument had been erected. We he said, have abundant reason to be grateful, grateful for life, for children, for our glorious country, and do well to assemble here to dedicate the tongue of peace and good will to all men. Well may we be grateful for what we possess. Not only, have we magnificent climate and fertile soil, but we have other and more valued gifts. Here we have a great and munificent Nation, where the heavily laden and sorrowing of the earth may come and find relief from their burdens and weariness, and find the true happiness which follows the liberty of conscience. Here under our benifient institutions all may find true freedom and liberty of conscience. Whether they gather in the magnificent Cathedral, in the Synagogue, or worship in the more humble church, or even amid the simple environs of nature all are guaranteed the right to worship their Creator as the light is given them, assured of the utmost religious freedom.

While enjoying this liberty, we must remember that we have a burden of our own to bear and a duty to perform. We must preserve and perpetuate these grand privileges, and thus transmit their advantages unsullied to our children. It is fitting that we should keep ever green in memory the struggles of these grand men who have gone before. We are their inheritors, to us has been transmitted the fruits of their labors. This valued heritage we hold in trust to hand down undiminished to our predecessors.

Let us indulge in retroospect; let us turn our eyes backward over the way of our predcessors. This is the road they traveled in their unselfish service of God and man. As they traveled this great highway they bore aloft two banners, the beautiful harbingers of civilization and religion. While bearing aloft the one, they preached the other.

Where they erected the mission, there they planted the school.

It is now something more than a century since these grand old Padres did this great work for us. We are here today to give some faint recognition of their labors in the true cause of humanity. Their work remains with us. They have laid down to their rest, but the results of their labors go on. They traveled this road seeking no conquests; they came not to tear down but to build up.

May this bell which we have today dedicated long ring out its welcome to all who travel this road, whether appareled in fine linen or clothed in rags, whether they be millionaire or pauper. May it ever ring out the message of Peace on Earth and good will to all men, for have we not consecrated it to the Prince of Peace.

After the singing of the "Star Spangled Banner" by the assemblage, Rev. Chas, C. Kirtland invoked the Benediction of the Heavenly Father upon the people and their work, and the audience dispersed.

CITY MOURNS DEATH OF PEOPIE'S FRIEND

Community Unites In Honoring Memory of Esteemed Resident of This City.

FUNERAL OF DR. W. M. BARRET

Remains of Popular Physician Laid to Rest by Masons---Touching Tribute Paid by Pastor.

With the solemn services of the Mosanic fraternity, of which he had been an honored member for a number of years, all that was mortal of the late Dr. Walter Meiville Barret was laid to eternal rest in the beautiful precincts of Cypress Lawn Cemetery Thursday afternoon. Since the death of Dr. Barret, which occurred just after noon on Tuesday, the remains of this honored citizen of Redwood City laid in the parlors of the beautiful home of the family, where loving neighbors and friends by the score called to bestow upon the bereaved ones what sympathy they could and to offer their tributes to the dead in a wealth of flowers, until these beautiful tributes of nature almost hid from view the casket containing the remains of the man who had possessed to an unusually marked degree the respect and love of the community.

Thursday morning the members of Redwood City Lodge No. 168, Free and Accepted Masons, assembled at their lodge room and marched in procession to the home of the family of their deceased brother on Stambaugh street, and escorted the remains to the Congregational Church, where the services for the dead were conducted by Rev. C. C. Kirtland, the pastor of the church, of which the deceased had been a consistent and active member. After the reading of an appropriate Scripture lesson, and the singing of a hymn by a quartette, Rev. Mr. Kirtland pronounced a short but touching eulogy upon the life and character of the deceased, which most nearly expresses the general sentiment of the entire community among whom Dr. Barret had passed the greater portion of a well spent life. That the pastor felt in this case a strong sense of personal loss was shown by the evident emotion under which he spoke.

Speaking with every evidence of personal feeling, Mr. Kirtland said that it was difficult to find language fitting to pay tribute to one whom he regarded as a dear friend, one in whose death himself, as well as his hearers, must feel a personal loss, a loss incomparable to the void in the hearts of the bereaved family with whom all came to mourn and console. No one, said Mr. Kirtland, has better opportunities for getting in close touch with his people than the family physician, and as such Dr. Barret had become a personal friend of his own family, their loved and faithful attendant on occasions of joy and of sorrow. For twenty years Dr. Barret had been a resident of this community, and during all of that time he had been faithful to the better attributes of life, both as a physician and a friend.

To him, one of the most notable and praiseworthy traits of the character of Dr. Barret was the fact that through a busy life he always found time to be friendly, to cultivate the social side of his nature. A true gentleman of the genial Southern type, he thoroughly enjoyed the pleasures of the true social side of life, the humorous chat and pleasant talk with his neighbor. Particularly were these grand traits shown where he was called into the family in his professional capacity, where most strongly he exhibited this spirit of friendship and cheerfulness.

Nor in his professional life was he controlled by those mercenary instincts which too often marr the lives of men. To him, his talents were for the alleviation of the ills and sufferings of humanity, and were given without consideration of the hope of reward in a pecuniary sense. He was every ready to respond to the call of the poor and needy, but let him know that they were in need of his services. His first thought was to relieve distress, the hope of other reward than the satisfaction of a kindly heart being an after consideration. It had well been said that Dr. Barret was a man whom the community could ill spare, that many among the poor will miss him.

As nothing human is perfect, so may this good man have had his faults. If these there were, those who knew him will be glad to forget the human shortcomings and remember the traits of love, charity and faithfulness which ever held possession of that heart.

In closing Mr. Kirtland afforded what was possible of human sympathy to the members of the bereaved family, reminding them that this earthly life was but a span compared with the blessed eternity into which their loved one had entered. That this parting was but temporary, and that all should meet again in the great Eternity.

After the close of the services at the church, the remains were escorted to the depot by his brother Masons and followed by a large concourse of sorrowing citizens, and were placed aboard the train for conveyance to Cypress Lawn Cemetery, where the interment took place. At the cemetery, the ritual services of the Masonic Fraternity were conducted by Roy W. Cloud, the Worshipful Master of Redwood City Lodge, and all that was mortal of one of Redwood City's most revered citizens was consigned to the keeping of his mother earth. The pall bearers, who were selected from his brother practitioners and members of the Masonic fraternity, were Drs. Ross, Taggart, McCracken, Taylor, Atkins and Seibert.

The death of Dr. Barret, which occurred shortly after noon Tuesday as the result of an attack of pneumonia, following a severe cold, came as a distinct shock, not only to the immediate family, but to the community in general. Though somewhat weakened from a too close attention to calls upon his professional duties, Dr. Barret had been about the streets as usual until the end of last week, in fact it was not until last Saturday that he listened to the urgent entreaty and advice of his family and retired to his home. Fearing that his condition was serious the family summoned the aid of his fellow physicians Doctors Ross, Taggart and Taylor. A consultation of these physicians determined that he was suffering from a severe attack of pneumonia, the case being rendered more complicated from the fact that close attention to the demands of his profession had weakened his system. In spite of the care of the best medical science available, Dr. Barret sank rapidly and on Tuesday he expired.

Dr. Walter Melville Barret was a native of Mississippi, having been born at Holly Springs, in that State June 26, 1855, the son of William L. Barret, who was also a practicing physician. His professional training was received in the Missouri Medical College, at St. Louis, from which he graduated with high honors in 1880. Immediately after graduation he commenced the practice of his profession in Covington, Tenn., where his father was then located. He had practiced there but little more than a year when he decided to cast his fortunes with the West and came to California, first locating in Plumas County. In 1891 he again changed his location, coming to this city, where he has since resided, enjoying great success in his chosen walk of life, and securing to a marked degree the love and respect of those who surrounded him. Probably no man in San Mateo county in any walk of life has enjoyed a wider circle of friends or more thoroughly become intrenched in the affections of the community where he has passed the best years of his life than has he. With a genial, true heart and an abundance of the purest charity, he has been the friend alike to the rich and the poor, all of whom will join their sympathies with the bereaved family. Besides his widow, Dr. Barret is survived by four children, Mrs. James Brown, Walter Louise and Mattie Barret.

City Council Appoints New Poundmaster---New Route Selected for Phelps Street Extension.

At the adjourned meeting of the City Council last Friday evening, the amended appication of Mrs. C. Ayres for a class A liquor license at tthe Tremont House was presented. The form of the application and bond was approved, and upon a favorable report from the health and police committee the permit was granted.

William Cassie presented an application for appointment as poundmaster fro the City. With a sigh of relief over the solution of a problem which has been a trouble for some months, the Trustees by a hearty unanimous vote ordered the appointment made, the new official to take up his duties immediately upon the filing of his official bond. City Clerk Plump was authorized to secure a supply of license tags, and owners of dogs who value their property and wish to keep their favorites out of the hands of the poundmaster will do well to see that the license tax is paid without delay. Nothing will be lost from the fact that it is late in the year as it is understood that a dog license paid now will hold good for the year 1910.

Chariman Brown of the finance committee presented a revised map of the proposed extension of Phelps street, which met with the approval of the Trustees, and seems to present a much better route than the one first suggested. As now proposed, the present lane will constitute the northerly line of the new street instead of the southerly. This will give a more direct union with Phelps street, and interfere less with buildings along the extension. On motion of Trustee Beeger the finance committee was authorized to secure estimates of the value of the property which will be required for the extension.

Quite a number of our citizens had their pockets picked during the Portola Festival last week in San Francisco. In acrowd like there was in San Francisco last week it was very easy for any one to steal anything you had and you would not know it.

James W. Coffroth has telegraphed to the County Clerk from New York directing him to continue the protest against the Sunshine Club 30 days from November 1st. Sheriff Robert Chatham says there is absolutely nothing in the ridiculous story printed in the Call last Tuesday about him. He was not handcuffed neither was his handcuffs stolen by a pick pocket. The story originated in the fertile brain of some dyspeptic reporter. It is surprising why a paper should publish such rot without finding out the truth of the story. The article in question was malicious and intended to reflect on the popular sheriff but fortunately it had the very opposite effect. The people know Bob Chatham to be an officer of dauntless courage, fearless in the discharge of his duties and anything the metropolitan papers may publish about him cannot injure him with those who know and admire him.

GOOD ENTETTAINMENT

Evening of Enjoyment for Stage Patrons Next Week.

That sensation of the theatre, Three Weeks, will be seen here Wednesday night, November 3d, at the Alhambra Theater.

Elinor Glyn's story of passion has been discussed by the entire reading public. The play adapted from the novel has been seen in the east and a few cities on the coast. Wherever presented capacity houses have been the rule.

It is assuredly no play for five year olds but it is a virile picture of life painted in strong colors. It is not a namby pamby eggshell drama or a psychological Ibsen problem, but a convincing play that shows the very depths of a woman's soul.

Miss Laura Hudson long identified with leading roles at Ye Liberty Playhouse, Oakland, portrays the leading role. She is an actress of rare beauty and power. Her performance of Madame Zalenska makes one think of that wonderful Russian atrist Nazimova. Miss Hudson is a woman of temperment and real dramatic power and Three Weeks will not only prove a surprise to theatregoers but will be an event in the dramatic calender.

A REAL MONTE CRISTO

The Tragic Career of Picaud, a Cobbler of Paris.

HIS RISE TO GREAT WEALTH.

Thrown Into Jail by Secret Enemies, He Was Left a Fortune by a Fellow Prisoner—Released, His Scheme of Vengeance Brought Him Death.

That romantic creation of the brain of Alexandre Dumas, "The Count of Monte Cristo," had a counterpart in real life in France in the last century. This is the tragic story:

In 1807, when Napoleon was at the height of his power, Francois Picaud was a sturdy young journeyman cobbler of Paris, full of health and animal spirits and happy in the love of Marguerite Vigoureux, a young girl of his own station in life. On the eve of his marriage hidden enemies denounced him to the imperial government as a spy. He was cast into prison, where he remained, forgotten by the world, for seven years.

Among his fellow prisoners was a wealthy Milanese priest, who treated him like a son and bequeathed to him 7,000,000 francs on deposit in the Bank of Amsterdam. Furthermore, this ecclesiastic told Picaud the secret of a hiding place in Italy where were concealed jewels to the value of 1,200,000 francs and specie amounting to three millions.

When the empire was overthrown in 1814 Picaud was one of a vast number of political prisoners throughout France who were given their freedom. He proceeded to gather the priest's treasure and to plan vengeance upon his enemies. Who they were he did not know.

Disguised as an Italian priest, he succeeded by bribing the least guilty of the conspirators and discovering the entire story of his undoing. The leader in the plot he learned was one Loupain, who had married Marguerite Vigoureux, prospered and become the proprietor of one of the handsomest cafes in Paris.

Picaud went to the capital and under a suitable disguise obtained work as a waiter in Loupain's establishment. Fellow servants there were Guilhem Solari and Gervais Chaubard, who, with Loupain, had denounced Picaud in 1807. The pretended waiter was not long in bringing his vengeance to a consummation. Chaubard was the first victim of his wrath. His body, pierced by a knife, was found on one of the bridges over the Seine. Loupain was disgraced, reduced to penury and finally stabbed to death in the Tuileries gardens. Solari was poisoned and died in frightful convulsions.

But speedy retribution overtook the implacable avenger. One night Picaud was seized, bound and borne to an abandoned quarry. In the darkness a terrible voice said:

"Picaud, what name are you passing under now? Are you still the priest Baldini or the waiter Prosper? You wished for revenge. You have sold yourself to the powers of hell. Ten years you have given to the pursuit of three wretches you should have spared. Me you dragged down to perdition. The diamond by which you bribed me was my destruction. I killed him who cheated me. I was arrested, condemned to the galleys and escaped only after years of torture. My one thought has been vengeance on the priest Baldini. You are in my power. Do you know me? I am Antoine Allut. How much will you pay for bread and water?"

"I have no money," groaned Picaud.

"You have sixteen millions. These are my conditions: I will give you something to eat twice a day, but for each meal you must pay me 25,000 francs."

However, the cupidity of the prisoner proved stronger than his hunger. He underwent terrible sufferihg without any signs of yielding until his captor, goaded to fury at the prolonged obstinacy, threw himself upon Picaud and stabbed him to death.—Bookman.

A Thackeray Story.

A correspondent of London Notes and Queries contributes this anecdote of Thackeray:

Thackeray once desired to succeed Cardwell as M. P. for the city of Oxford and when returning from his canvass said: "What do you think, Cardwell! Not one of your constituents ever heard of me and my writings." He prefaced "constituents" with a strongish adjective.

Strange, if true. They must have been starving in the midst of plenty.

A Straight Tip.

Johnnie (to new visitor)—So you are my grandma, are you? Grandmother—Yes, Johnnie. I'm your grandma on your father's side. Johnnie—Well, you're on the wrong side, you'll find out!—Philadelphia Bulletin.

Horrible.

"That was an awful disaster. There was only one survivor. Isn't that terrible?"

"Fearful. What a bore he'll be!"—Cleveland Leader.

Disenchanted.

"Do you believe in the superhuman?"

"I used to, but I don't any more."

"Why?"

"I married him."—Chicago Record-Herald.

No man knows the weight of another man's burden.—Pliny.

Her Retort.

It is always gratifying to meet a person who is contented with his lot. For that reason it would be delightful to make the acquaintance of the woman who had the last word in a suffragist controversy. The writer of a suffragist communication in a newspaper wrote sadly that "woman is nothing but a female relative of man; the man is the noun, the woman is the preposition." "Well, what do I care?" was the triumphant retort. "The preposition governs the noun."—Youth's Companion.

As one weak link weakens a chain, so weak kidneys weaken the whole body and hasten the final breaking down.

Overwork, strains, colds and other causes injure the kidneys, and when their activity is lessened the whole body suffers from the excess of uric poison circulated in the blood.

Aches and pains and languor and urinary ills come, and there is an ever increasing tendency towards diabetes and fatal Bright's disease. There is no real help for the sufferer except kidney help.

Doan's Kidney Pills act directly on the kidneys and cure every kidney ill. Redwood City cures are the proof.

Fred Haussler, 101 Stambaugh st., Redwood City, Cal., says: Doan's Kidney Pills are certainly worthy of the highest praise. My kidneys did not seem to act properly and the secretions were very unnatural. When Doan's Kidney Pills were brought to my attention, I procured a box at P. A Ryan's drug store. The results of their use were most satisfactory. I advise anyone suffering from kidney trouble to give Doan's Kidney Pills a trial.

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States.

Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.
